ATKINSON'S EVENING POST,
AND PHILADELPHIA SATURDAY NEWS.

Vol. XVIII. Philadelphia, October 26, 1839. Whole No. 892.

MUSIC.

BY H. W. LONGFELLOW.

Thou singest here unto a siren, free
And happy in their beauty;
And modest maidens at the wheel
That hide a troubled heart.

And there an angel visits Israel,
And stirs the waters with his wings;
How life is lost an April day
Of sunshine and of showers.

Where memory wakes and there,
And in the laugh of fresher girls
That come to draw the water.

The flowers must wither in the sun,
The dew shall wet that clouds the day,
From withered urns the spring,
The heart is broken by its music.

The fluttering of his wing.

There's music in the dash of waves
When the swift bark cleaves their foamy
There's music in the gush of rills,
And in the rustling of the leaves.

The mariner's song of home,
That stirs the soul and summons sweet
As shepherd's pipe at even
And there is music in a work

Well done, a duty finished,
And in the sense of honest toil
In life, and dear home,
And from our morning prayers we seek
Of childhood's feeble hours are best,
And ask on us to share
Our every means to chill the heart,
And dim the eye with tears.

Oh, the home leaves are gone,
They'll return to the trees no more,
And the mother's laugh be changed ere long
To the widow's wail of sorrow.
Come with the wheat and the wine and oil
Where we've spent both!
The mariner is a silent sea,
And the mariner's song is o'er.

Miss Landon's Forthcoming Work.

The moonlight music of the waves
In summer is heard no more,
And the spring-time brook sends forth its work
At midnight on the shore,
And the mariner's song of home has ceased,
His mother's voice is hushed,
And never comes when it rains
In Scudder's balcony.

From Blackwood's Magazine for September.

The Bellmanship—A True Story.

CHAPTER I.

The course of my narrative never did run smooth." Didn't it? Let any man look round the world and observe in this observation of Mr. Shakespeare. Pray, reader, what is the first thing you do on the true love of your mother, Mr. Bibbs, and his fat wife? "You mean to say, you mean to say, a voice from which all troubles had disappeared.

Mr. Flantagnet's countenance again laid his hand upon the pretty little whole lid glove, which at this time was so unfortunate, and looking at the sweet blue eyes which I have already described, he exclaimed,

"Won't I?—that's all."

Miss Fadden seemed quite as satisfied with the declaration as if she had been made in the words or for upon the bended knee; and I do not know that I ought to apologize on a matter so unimportant as that which I am about to relate, as mentioned a dagger in her in its life; I never was one of those that stay, even at the last ball, considered Mr. Bibbs an angel. Miss Fadden was a young lady of the first order of a well-to-do, retired, old-fashioned, and pretty little mansion in the right or near hundred a year. This is my reader's account of it, and consider so here I shall leave the learned to their own opinions, assuming, I beg to say, you have not been in the habit of reading novels, and are willing to take them as you would have found out that I am a novel writer. Well, I am, and I glory in it. I have written a novel, and I will write another, and another, and another, and

Atkinson's Saturday Post
Philadelphia Weekly Gazette

UNDER THE EDITORIAL CHARGE OF
GEORGE R. GRAHAM,
Late Editor of Graham's Magazine.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1839.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

We feel assured that in these pressing times, it will affect pleasure to our subscribers to receive us on all the calls in their power. We hope for us all the calls in their power. We hope for us all the calls in their power. We hope for us

EPITOME OF THE TIMES

NEWS ITEMS AND GENERAL TOPICS.

More Progress of the Year.—On the last yearly meeting day of the Society of Friends in Philadelphia, the following extract from the report of the Meeting for Sufferings was read: "The number of persons in membership with us is declared and recorded, the decrease by death and removal by certificate is known, and the increase by birth and convincement is ascertained, and the net decrease is reported from each of the Quarterly Meetings."

The Kidnapped Boy.—Samuel and Frances Jones (sons of the Rebecca Jones), have been found in Canada, and will be brought home to-day. Their recovery is considered by the Executive of Virginia to be due to the prompt and energetic action of requisition from Gov. Everett, as they must first be tried for kidnapping the boys at the time they were stolen.

Murder in Boston.—On Saturday last, the dead body of Goldsworthy Jones was found in his room, with several wounds on her head and throat. It appears that she had been murdered in a state of intoxication for several weeks past.

The Boston Times intimates the propriety of a Fenian movement on its own account. We dare say the mine of gold in the Boston Treasury would be a very tempting bait for a man, and a patriot, but the subject would require a little more than ordinary courage to undertake, and a little more than ordinary cleverness to carry out.

Interesting Lectures.—Dr. Reynell Coates has commenced a course of lectures on Hygiene, and Professor Leidy has commenced a course of lectures upon Geology, Mineralogy, and the means of relief of chronic Dyspepsia, and the cause of its production.

The Centennial Exhibition.—The Board of Finance met on the evening of the 17th inst., to consider the question of the appropriation of $1,500,000, for the purpose of the Exhibition. The meeting was in attendance. The committee will hold in the lecture room, corner of Broad and Chestnut streets.

Thirty thousand cod fish per annum are supplied to the Philadelphia market from the fisheries on the coast of Labrador, which are owned by the citizens of the present count.

A Gas for Navigation.—We are informed that the Secretary of the Navy has received from Prof. Pettit, late assistant engineer United States Navy, a communication stating that he has discovered a gas for lighting buoys. The buoys have been tested, and found to be perfectly safe. The gas will last from three to four months, and some buoys will be furnished with it.

Admiralty and Meeting Sight.—A fine specimen of the ancient Court of Admiralty is to be seen in the Court of Common Pleas, No. 2, in the case of Thomas Jefferson, a colored boy, who was arrested for the murder of Mary Jane Hall, a little girl, on the 4th of July last. The boy is charged with the murder, and the trial is now going on. The court room is crowded with spectators, and the boy is on trial for his life. The testimony is very conflicting, and the case will probably occupy the court for some days.

Arrest of Counterfeiters.—Two brothers, whose names are Leonard S. and Levy Hirsh, were recently committed to prison in Cincinnati, charged with passing counterfeit money. A search warrant was issued, and a trunk, in which upwards of $6000 was found upon the premises, and $7,000 more in the Bank of Southern Ohio, Cin.

A Rogue Arrested.—The Detroit Free Press of the 15th inst. says: "By a telegram from the Treasury Department of this city, we learn that Thomas Nott, of Rochester, N. Y., who was arrested in Detroit on the 10th inst., on the charge of counterfeiting, has been released. It was found in the hands of the Secret Service officers of Detroit, who arrested the man, that he was not the person wanted, and that the real counterfeiter was still at large. Nott was released from custody on the 12th inst., and some twelve hours after was again arrested on the charge of counterfeiting."

Admiralty and Meeting Sight.—A fine specimen of the ancient Court of Admiralty is to be seen in the Court of Common Pleas, No. 2, in the case of Thomas Jefferson, a colored boy, who was arrested for the murder of Mary Jane Hall, a little girl, on the 4th of July last. The boy is charged with the murder, and the trial is now going on. The court room is crowded with spectators, and the boy is on trial for his life. The testimony is very conflicting, and the case will probably occupy the court for some days.

Arrest of Counterfeiters.—Two brothers, whose names are Leonard S. and Levy Hirsh, were recently committed to prison in Cincinnati, charged with passing counterfeit money. A search warrant was issued, and a trunk, in which upwards of $6000 was found upon the premises, and $7,000 more in the Bank of Southern Ohio, Cin.

A Rogue Arrested.—The Detroit Free Press of the 15th inst. says: "By a telegram from the Treasury Department of this city, we learn that Thomas Nott, of Rochester, N. Y., who was arrested in Detroit on the 10th inst., on the charge of counterfeiting, has been released. It was found in the hands of the Secret Service officers of Detroit, who arrested the man, that he was not the person wanted, and that the real counterfeiter was still at large. Nott was released from custody on the 12th inst., and some twelve hours after was again arrested on the charge of counterfeiting."

Forgery Detected.—On Wednesday, 16th inst a man, who called himself Walker, presented at the Bank of Commerce, in New York, a draft for $1,000 on the United States Bank on the Branch, purporting to be for one of the Virginia State bonds. The draft was discovered immediately that the time was up, and the bank refused to pay it. Walker, on discovering immediately that the time was up, and the bank refused to pay it. Walker, on discovering immediately that the time was up, and the bank refused to pay it. Walker, on discovering